GUIDE TO HEALTHY school parties

FOOD IN SCHOOL SHOULD SUPPORT CLASSROOM LESSONS

Students are taught in classrooms about good nutrition and the value of healthy food choices. However, many times foods served in the classroom, in the case of a class party, are low in nutrients and high in calories. This sends them a mixed message – that good nutrition is just an academic exercise that is not supported by school administration and is not important to their health or education. To send the right message administrators, teachers, parents and students need to promote healthy lifestyle principles, replacing unhealthy food offerings with healthy ones.

OBESITY RATES ARE SKY-ROCKETING

Obesity rates among children and adolescents are sky-rocketing. Rates have doubled among children and tripled among teens since 1990. Two pilot studies in Alabama schools in different regions found 17% of youth at risk for overweight and 27% already overweight. The health consequences of this are serious: more youth are becoming diabetic, more have elevated blood pressure and more suffer the psycho-social effects of being overweight. Overweight is caused by a combination of too many calories from foods and beverages and too little physical activity. With physical activity programs declining in schools, it is even more important to provide students with nutritious beverages and snacks in appropriate portion sizes wherever food is offered. Snack ideas for school/classroom parties are listed on the back.
